State and Local Education Agencies: Phases of Response

1. Decide To Close Schools
- Typically involves the public health department
- Varies across states and district
- If time frame seems short, then districts are less likely to make long-term plans

2. Outreach After School Closure
- Needs to be positive, trauma-informed and relationship-building
- Assess immediate needs for food, e.g. grab and go food, shelter, and other supports
- Connect families to learning supports and determine access to technology
- Link to needed virtual behavioral, emotional and physical health supports
- Should leverage data (including absences, special education status, and other demographic information) to triage and tailor supports

3. Sustain Support and Engagement
- Can use data on absences, special ed status, and demographics to determine who is best to offer support
- Should be coordinated across departments
- Ideally can document interaction and support needs to inform future learning plans
- Best if offered to caregivers and students directly

4. Transition Back to School
- Could include tips for families to shift to school routine
- Allows for multi-faceted support plan that takes into account each student’s current and past situation (academic, behavior, absences, and demographic information)
- Uses data to target students/schools needing additional support
- Promotes trauma-informed, welcoming school climate
- Supports more seamless transition between virtual and in-person settings
Roll Call:
Name and Organization

Question for the Chat:
Your state & how long are schools closed in your state?
How are SEAs supporting local school districts?

Are any of you providing guidance covering:

- The role of educators and support staff during school closure
- Outreach strategies and scripts for connecting with students and families and assessing needs.
- Opportunities to connect students and families with community and state resources and supports
- Information and recommendations about how to triage outreach using chronic absence or other type of data to identify which families and students to reach out to first
- Information and recommendations about using data to determine who should provide outreach e.g. if a student has a pre-existing chronic illness recommending a RN or CNA conduct outreach

What other guidance, information or resources are you providing to school districts?

Measuring Engagement and Participation in a Distance/Remote Learning Environment

1. Is your state offering guidance to districts about how to take attendance during school closures? If so, what is it? (Does it build upon pre-existing guidance for virtual learning? Is it something new?)

2. Is your state considering how it might measure and notice when students are not participating in distance learning? Have any states (or districts you know about) developed measures that detect the lack of participation and serve as an alert that students/families could be disconnected, disengaged or experiencing challenges affecting their health and safety? What would help your state with the development of such a metric?

3. Is your state offering guidance on how often school personnel should check in with students/families and offering strategies on how to do so?
How can we help each other at this time?

• Are there resources or information to share?
• Are there emerging questions that this group should think about?
