Purpose

To advance agriscience education and FFA opportunities for students by providing stipends, benefits, registration, and travel for agriscience teachers to work beyond the normal school year to develop and maintain a highly effective agriscience program. A highly effective program focuses on three equal parts: classroom instruction, supervised agricultural experience (SAE), and FFA.

Fund Use

The funds for the extended school year may only be spent on stipends, benefits, teacher registration, and the teacher's travel expenses to approved career and technical education activities related to agriscience classroom instruction, SAEs, or FFA activities. Funds for teacher travel and registrations may only be used for chaperoning students to agriscience or FFA-related events or to workshops that provide professional development and can be verified through a certificate. Funds for out-of-state travel and registration for out-of-state events shall not exceed $1,800. Funds may not be used to pay for student travel, classroom supplies, equipment, tuition, food for students, meeting supplies, and apparel for teachers and/or students. Supplanting funds is not allowable. Funds may only be used for stipends for working days, not vacation days. Payments for stipends and additional days cannot be made for days the employee is paid under contract. School board approval for payments made to employees should clearly indicate that these payments are for "one time only" and will not add additional days to employee contracts.

Program Goals

To increase student opportunities through improvements in FFA, SAEs, and classroom instruction.

Eligibility

Local Education Agencies (LEAs) are eligible to submit one proposal per agriscience teacher on a 220-day or less contract that supports the purposes of the Agriscience Education Extended School Year Grant. Only agriscience teachers beginning their second consecutive year as an agriscience teacher with an FFA Chapter in good standing as defined by the Alabama FFA Association are eligible. Furthermore, only agriscience teachers that are reported as 100% full-time equivalent in career and technical education on the career and technical program application are eligible to apply unless the agriscience teacher is teaching only science courses outside of his/her career and technical education courses. A minimum Performance-Based Evaluation score of 100, having an FFA chapter in good standing, and registration/attendance of members at the 2021 Alabama FFA State Convention will be required for eligibility. Agriscience teachers that taught agriscience at a different school during the previous school year are also eligible using the previous school data on the performance-based evaluation. Teachers that received the Agriscience Education Extended School Year Grant during the previous school year that scored less than 75 or did not submit the Final Report/Desk Audit are not eligible for award consideration the following year. Any ineligible applications will be returned and not evaluated.

Funding Availability

A maximum of $18,000 per teacher for stipend, benefits, and approved teacher travel and registration costs. Out-of-state travel and registration for out-of-state events shall not exceed $1,800.

INTRODUCTION

“With increasing pressure for justification and funding of extended programs, documentation of time spent, and activities performed will help you meet the demands from state and local education officials. Documentation means more than shuffling papers. The summer months of the agriculture instructor/FFA advisor have legislatively and traditionally been months of supervision, teaching, and learning. Since the passage of the Smith-Hughes Act in 1917, vocational agriculture instructors have been employed for a longer period of time than other teachers in the high school (originally 12 months). The extended program provides the opportunity to conduct summer educational activities and experiences through “directed and supervised practice.” Extended programs are a valuable and necessary component of the Agriscience program. The teaching of Agriscience students cannot and should not stop at the beginning of June if we intend to gain the optimum advantages in learning for our students. Agriscience practices, Agriscience/agricultural programs, and supervised agricultural experience (SAE) programs are in full operation during the summer, and these students need supervision. The major purpose of the extended program is to provide quality instruction for students enrolled in Agriscience courses. If the Agriscience instructor is to be accountable for his/her time and activity, the instruction must focus on the SAE programs and other student-oriented activities.” Agriculture Teacher’s Manual, National FFA Organization, 1998, pp. 11:2-4

This manual defines the extended school year requirements for teachers holding an Agriscience Certification who are teaching courses from the Agriculture, Food, and Natural Resources (AFNR) Cluster and are participating in the state-funded Career and Technical Education (CTE) Initiative. The manual provides the criteria and guidelines to be implemented by the Agriscience teacher to be eligible for and remain in compliance with the extended school year grant. These criteria will be used for evaluation and for continued participation in the state funded CTE Initiative.

The purpose of the extended school year grant is to provide funding to the local education agency (LEA) for stipends, benefits, travel to Alabama State Department of Education (ALSDE) and FFA-sanctioned activities, and other approved activities for extended school year beyond the existing teacher contract period for Agriscience teachers currently on a 220-day or less contract. The goals of the extended school year grant are to increase student membership and participation in FFA, leadership, citizenship, academics, and technological skill activities to enable students to participate in comprehensive learning environments that enhance their knowledge and skills of Agriscience. Students are then able to make more informed career decisions and perform at higher-skill levels in the AFNR industry.

Due to the year-round nature of Supervised Agricultural Experience (SAE) programs, continued supervision through the summer months is required. SAE programs are an integral part of the total school-based agricultural education program which is a component of the state's work-based learning initiatives. Examples of SAE programs are employment or placement, entrepreneurship, research, home and farm improvements, and technical skills. Teachers are required to visit students' SAE programs to evaluate progress and supervise students.

To enable agriculture students to take full advantage of opportunities afforded them through the co-curricular (intra-curricular) National FFA Organization, Agriscience teachers are available year-round. Many FFA career development events and leadership conferences occur during the summer months to avoid conflict during class time. Many FFA chapters hold meetings, retreats, workshops, and industry visits during the summer months in preparation for the upcoming school year. These activities ensure personal growth and development, along with technical competence of agricultural education students.

Because of the dynamic nature of the AFNR industry, it is crucial for teachers to keep abreast of new technology. Many industry-sponsored workshops and conferences occur during the extended school year period. Furthermore, during the summer months, agricultural-related industries hold professional development workshops and seminars to provide up-to-date curricular materials and delivery systems.

Facilities required for teaching the Agriscience Education curriculum require extensive upkeep. Many schools have animal laboratories and/or greenhouses that must be managed on a daily basis. Timely renovation and maintenance of facilities are necessary in maintaining a quality program to serve students.

QUALITY PROGRAM INDICATORS

The state of Alabama has defined all CTE programs using quality program indicators with an agreement through Carl Perkins funding. These indicators are validated by obtaining program certification. The indicators for all Alabama CTE programs are as follows:

- Programs of such size that offer an equivalent of three (3) one-credit courses within a period of two consecutive years.
- Programs of such scope that are aligned with the State Board of Education-approved Alabama Course of Study (COS) and Plans of Instruction (POI).
- Programs that have a certified and appropriately endorsed teacher.
- Programs having a state-approved articulation agreement for a program of study, or a local articulation agreement approved in writing by secondary and postsecondary institutions (where available).
- Programs being supported by current labor market data to support high-skill, high-wage, or high-demand jobs.
- Programs that teach all aspects of an industry.
- Programs having an active advisory committee.
- Programs having a Career and Technical Student Organization (CTSO) as an integral part of the instructional program for all students.
- Programs promoting CTE and related academic curriculum integration with academic teachers.

A 12-month Agriscience Education program is one that equally maximizes the following three critical components of the educational instructional procedure, requiring that the teacher have an extended school year.

Classroom Instruction – This component includes contextual academic and technical skills and is accomplished through effective classroom and laboratory instruction which prepares qualified employees for the agriculture, food, and natural resources industry.

SAE – This component includes field experiences of concepts and principles learned in the classroom and are accomplished by teaching students' practical skills by providing hands-on, real-world experiences that will help them be successful in today's work world. These activities are intended to be project, service, and work-based learning experiences for students.

Student Leadership (FFA) – This component is accomplished by encouraging and assisting students to participate in FFA. The National FFA Organization makes a positive difference in students' lives by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth, and career success through Agriscience Education. FFA operates at the local, county, district, state, and national levels. The local FFA chapter is an integral part of the Agriscience Education program, providing a variety of opportunities for students to develop leadership and take charge of their learning. Effective FFA chapters help students make school-to-career connections, develop career skills, prepare for responsible citizenship, earn recognition, and build self-confidence.

To ensure that all Agriscience Education programs taught by teachers with extended school year incorporate and maximize the three critical components listed above, programs shall implement, at a minimum, 75% of the items listed on the self-evaluation (Agriscience Education Program Final Report – Desk Audit) and shall strive to attain high-quality standards as evidenced by a desk audit or site visit.

COMPLIANCE MONITORING, THE LOCAL EDUCATION AGENCY, AND THE STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

- The local CTE Administrator or designee shall evaluate the Agriscience Education program annually using the Alabama State Department of Education program certification, continued compliance monitoring protocol and/or NCCER core indicators. Documentation of this annual program evaluation shall be documented on the Program Application and Accountability Plans for Career and Technical Education and be submitted on or before August 1. If deficiencies are noted, a preliminary copy of the CTE Monitoring and/or NCCER review performed by the local CTE Administrator shall be sent to the ALSDE Administrator responsible for the supervision of the AFNR cluster on or before June 1.
- All programs must meet program certification, continued compliance monitoring and/or NCCER requirements as evidenced by reviews. Any deficiency shall be corrected within the fiscal year of the review.
- Agriscience teachers must complete all requirements of the Agriscience Education Extended School Year Grant to be eligible to receive an extended school year. The Agriscience Education Extended School Year Grant will be read and evaluated by outside readers. The score received on the Agriscience Education Extended School Year Grant and available funds allocated by the Alabama legislature will determine the grant award and the eligibility for participation in the state funded CTE extended school year initiative.
- Agriscience teachers must complete the program self-evaluation (Agriscience Education Program Final Report – Desk Audit) and submit it to the ALSDE Agriscience Education Specialist on or before August 31. This deadline must be met annually to be eligible for participation in the CTE Initiative.
- Agriscience teachers must complete the Final Budget Report and submit it to the ALSDE Agriscience Education Specialist on or before August 31. This deadline must be met annually to be eligible for participation in the CTE Initiative.

CONSEQUENCES

Any program that does not obtain or maintain program certification, has a CTSO (FFA) chapter not in good standing or that deviates from the activities outlined in the Agriscience Education Extended School Year Grant shall be considered out of compliance and the teacher will not be eligible for participation in the CTE Initiative.
