and what the niche market is that is being targeted.

Instructors can use the presentation program/software, slides, handouts, and the Internet in conjunction with the following outline.

Provide examples of different types of markets. For example, ask the students if anyone owns a pet. If so, they are part of the pet owner market. Draw a type of hierarchy (like an organizational chart) on the board or document camera. Ask if they know of stores that cater to the needs of pets and their owners. Then ask students to divide the pet owner market into segments. For each segment add a shape to the hierarchy until you have a shape at the top for the larger market and several shapes underneath representing the niche markets. Challenge the students to identify even more specifically-targeted niche markets such as: first level-pet owner, second Website Storyboard Assignment #1 – Using a niche market of their choice, students will create an electronic storyboard containing renditions of at least four pages of a website. They will be evaluated on the content, proper design elements for a website, as well as the appropriateness of the design to their chosen niche. Personal Niche Target Market Assignment #2 – Students should think of a product or service idea that they think Assignment #3 – To demonstrate how important a keyword search is to help customers locate a niche market, students are to select a general market, go to a search engine and type that market in the search box with quotes. Select the time frame option for ‘Past Month,’ which is usually on the left. Record the number of results. Narrow down the market to a niche market, then conduct research at online app stores or app maker sites to see what some of these types of ads can look like if you are unfamiliar with them. Also research what these types of ads look like. These types of ads can include a banner ad (which can be animated or not) as well as a mobile phone app. Research the look of those as well as other ads that can be created. Students are to create one offline marketing document (either a flier, magazine, or newspaper ad) and two online ads which can include a banner ad (which can be animated or not) as well as a mobile phone app. Research to see what these types of ads can look like if you are unfamiliar with them. Also conduct research at online app stores or app maker sites to see what some of them look like.

Have students get into groups of 5 and each person find a product (5 products total and of their choice). They must incorporate Maslow’s Hierarchy of Needs, the 5 social aspects of advertising, and features/benefits of the product. Students will create a PowerPoint (at least 7 slides) utilizing all criteria and give an in-depth explanation of each product.

think about the last time an ad motivated them to purchase an item or an ad that made an impact. Discuss as a class why they remember certain ads. What attracts their attention? Is it color? Images? Brands?

(Day 2) Review consumer wants and needs. Tell the class you are going to be talking about values and culture in relation to Advertising.

(Day 3) Use PowerPoint as aid. Tell the students the objective today will be to learn the different selling strategies businesses use to get consumers to purchase their products. Tell them they will also learn how advertising and selling go together yet are different.

Introduction

Question on products and advertising group discussion to differentiate between the three styles. Try to get the majority of students to agree on certain aspects before writing them in the 'teacher diagram' located at the front for everyone to see. If the students agree on something that is incorrect, be sure to let them know and guide them onto the right path. This conversation should take no longer than 15 minutes.

3. Use the overhead projector or chalk board to provide the formal definitions of each style for all to see. On the same piece of paper that students used to draw their tri-topic diagram, ask them to jot down the note. Be sure to thoroughly explain every style of leadership orally while the students copy it down. Answer any questions. This should take about 10 minutes.

• The Importance of Basic Math in Business

• Whether you are aware of it or not, math is used in most aspects of your daily life, both at home and in the office. Knowledge of basic math can save you a lot of time when you’re at the clothing store or supermarket, but it is also important in a business environment.

http://www.ehow.com/facts_7472221_importance-basic-math-business.html

• Why Is Mathematics Important in Culinary Arts?
Comfort with mathematics is an essential component of the culinary arts. Chefs and cooks use math skills every day to measure ingredients precisely, to convert units based on the equipment they have and to modify recipe portions. Mathematics is also important for the business side of things, such as in the case of determining cost per meal, so the executive chef can establish a menu price that will yield a profit.

● Reading Strategy
Encourage students to “visualize” as they read. Many students are visual learners and will benefit from making sketches or diagrams on scrap paper as they read. Providing students with graphic organizers to help them organize their thoughts is also helpful.

Unit 4 Title: Legal Issues

Content Standards
8. Identify laws and regulations that affect the hospitality and tourism industry.
   8a. Identify the employment laws that impact the hospitality and tourism industry, and describe the role of human resources managers in applying these laws.
   8b. Discuss state and federal labor laws regulating the workplace.
   8c. Summarize OSHA requirements that apply to hospitality and tourism settings.

Unpacked Learning Objectives

Students know:
- How to identify laws and regulations that affect the hospitality and tourism industry.
- How to describe the roles and responsibilities of HR managers in applying laws and regulations.
- How to research laws that pertain to the workplace.
- How to list and explain state and federal labor laws
- How to research OSHA requirements that apply to hospitality and tourism settings.

Students are able to:
- Identify laws that impact the hospitality and tourism industry.
- Produce a presentation that describes the role and responsibilities of human resource managers.
- Discuss state and federal labor laws which regulate the workplace.
- Discuss OSHA requirements that apply to hospitality and tourism settings.

Students understand that:
- Students will understand that knowledge of hospitality regulations protects a business’s reputation and keeps the company in compliance.
- Students will understand that tourism related laws are enacted to protect tourists, control borders, ensure quality of services, protect the environment and to conserve historical sites and monuments.
- Human resource managers are tasked with maintaining a working knowledge of the laws surrounding employment as well as communicating the meaning of these laws to employers and employees alike.
- There are federal and state laws that regulate hiring, wages, hours and salary, discrimination, harassment, employee benefits, paid time off, job applicant and employee testing, privacy and other important workplace and employee rights.
- OSHA’s role is to assure the safety and health of America’s working men and women by setting and enforcing standards, providing training, outreach and education, establishing partnerships and encouraging continual process improvement in workplace safety and health.
